Fashionable Reading.

[illegible] "Professor" but will [illegible] Anderson, the [illegible] skill with which he [illegible] pioneers to the modes [illegible] nature of which, to say the least, were extraordinary, and past finding out, by the shrewdest and most astute lookers-on. What the "Professor" said in his peculiar way

"Would any gentleman or lady lend me a pocket-handkerchief—There's no Father upon mischief; for thereby hang a "trick" that him hitherto defied solution by the most acute and penetrating observer. But the sport.

There are other "professors" it would seem; and in Europe they abound. Of one of them, a celebrated flute player, the following amusing anecdote is recorded:

"He advertised a concert for his benefit in a country town; and in order to attract those who had no music in their souls, and were not moved by concord of sweet sounds, he announced that between the acts he would exhibit an extraordinary feat, and one never before heard of in Europe. He would hold in his left hand a glass of wine, and would allow six of the strongest men in the town to hold his arm; and notwithstanding all their efforts to prevent him, he would drink the wine!"

So novel and surprising a display of strength, as it was of course naturally enough regarded, attracted a very crowded house. Expectation was on tip-toe, when the "Professor" appeared upon the stage, with a wine-glass, full of wine, in his hand, and in very polite and courteous phrase, invited any half dozen men to come forward, and put his prowess to the test.

Several gentlemen, among whom was the Mayor of the place, immediately advanced to the stage, and grasped the left arm of the "Professor," apparently rendering the performance of his promised feat beyond the question.

There was to be a pause for a moment, when the exasperated "Professor," against the gentlemen had grumbled him, exclaimed, Broken English:

"Gentlemens, are you all ready?!"

"We are ready if you are," was the reply, grasped still more tightly to get well.

"Are you quite sure you have got a fast holds?"

The answer having been given in the affirmative, by a very confident many to whom it was addressed, the "Professor" to the intense amusement of the audience and the groups around him, advancing the wine glass which was of course emptied very easily, took the wine glass from the left hand, and bowing very politely to the [illegible] gentlemen who were exhausting their [illegible] upon his left arm, said:

"Gentlemens, I have the honor to drink all your good healths!"

As the same moment he quaffed the contents of the glass, amid a general roar of laughter and [illegible] "Well done, Professor!"

[illegible] seen without any apprehension on the part of the audience.

The eventful night at length arrived; the [illegible] lecture was delivered to a crowded house; and all the spectators were awaiting with breathless expectation the rising of a green baize curtain which had been suspended behind the lecturer, and from whence had come, at different times during the intellectual performance, the most hideous sounds.

Before proceeding to exhibit the animals, the lecturer dwelt at some length upon the characteristics of each; and describing, especially, the ravenous nature of the Guyanosa, and his enormous strength. He then retired behind the curtain, to arrange the animals for immediate exhibition.

There was an interval of some five or six minutes, when a great clanking of chains was heard, and a roar, half animal, half human, which shook the whole house. In a moment a shriek, as of one "amit with sudden pain," was heard, and out rushed the exhibitor, his hair erect, his eyes staring from their sockets, and dire terror depicted in every feature:

"Save yourselves! ladies and gentlemen! —save yourselves!" he exclaimed: "the Guyanosa has broken loose, and has already killed the Prock!"

The house was cleared in two minutes! and, what is remarkable, neither the lecturer, the "Prock," nor the "Guyanosa" was ever seen in the village afterward.

There were some who doubted whether the strange animals were present at all; but such incredulous persons were answered by hundreds:

"Why, we heard 'em howl, as plain as we hear you speak!"

Of course that settled the question entirely!

CHARLEY ADAMS.

Of the Manhattan tells some very good yarns about the old-fashioned people who formerly navigated the Hudson. Case Fish, some twenty years ago, was pilot of the steamboat Republic. Case was a little [illegible] and was very frequently the victim of a [illegible]. Sometimes the fun would [illegible] were four schooners and a [illegible] on the starboard bow, when there would not be a sail anywhere in sight. The consequence was, that Case, very [illegible] steered the steamer without cause, and often run a mile or two out of his way to avoid vessels which owed their existence entirely to the mischievous dispositions of the irritable [illegible]. Time and [illegible] on this [illegible] of the channel, that no one dare [illegible] would believe the truth. We [illegible] a couple.

Now, there comes a sloop; and if you must look out, she will be upon us, sure as [illegible].

That is the [illegible] during his sleep with the [illegible] everything to fool the old man out [illegible] of the times!

"Do such things, Case, you [illegible] a sloop heading for us, and if you don't alter the [illegible] with knock something into our [illegible] in less than five minutes."

"It's no use, sonny—you can't fool der old pilot dis time."

"Well, fool or no fool, I'm going to prepare for jumping overboard!"

Saying which, the helper at the wheel made tracks out of the pilot's house. Just as he turned to go, however, old Case saw the sloop too, when he exclaimed—

"Wait for me, old man, Bob! Pay, der dam, it all de smoke-pipes won't come down de next trip!"

The collision took place, but as the Legislature was one of those old-fashioned, square-timbered boats that formerly plied between this city and Albany, she merely rebounded and pitched in again; and as no one was at the wheel to stop the engine, she, of course, continued to "pitch in!" Having done this six or seven times, the captain of the sloop, a [illegible] Providence, came [illegible] and helloed out:

"What on airth you doin'? If you keep on coming that way for an hour or two longer, you'll hurt something, see if you don't!"

This reflection of the old Yankee's power to hurt [illegible] awakened old Case from his stoical [illegible]. He immediately reversed the wheel, gave the engine two turns back, and the next moment was on his way in safety, as cool and philosophic as if nothing had happened for an hour either himself or the sloop above pipes. We have one or two other anecdotes of the old pilot, which we will relate at another time.

☞ "My dear fellow," said Beau Hickman to a waiter in a hotel, "I have respect for your blood, I may say to a hotel, I have respect for that, indeed, I may say I am fond of that. But, I like to have them and my gin in separate glasses; they mix so much better when you have control of both ingredients."

☞ A Yankee has invented a washing which will churn, pound clothes and pump water, and when complete will milk the cow, get tight, and whip the children.

☞ Not Very Bad.—The editor of the Erie Observer, a newly married man, said this the other day to a town contemporary:

"The mother-in-law of the editor of the Gazette wants somebody to get up in the morning at four o'clock to hear the birds sing. For our part we have better company than birds at that hour in the morning, hence we can't take his advice."

☞ A shoemaker who has lost his all, and wrestled his last, is truly a melancholy sight.

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT.

By His Excellency John Laurence Manning, Governor and Commander-in-chief in and over the State of South Carolina.

In consideration of the many blessings which Almighty God has bestowed upon the people of this State during the past year, and especially for the preservation of general health within its limits during a season of unexampled mortality and suffering elsewhere—and in consideration of the existence of a pestilence which is now ravaging some of the fairest portions of our common country, making the people to tremble under its fearful desolations: I, JOHN LAURENCE MANNING, Governor and Commander-in-chief in and over the State of South Carolina, by virtue of authority vested in me, do issue this my proclamation, setting apart Thursday the 13th day of October next, as a day of fasting, humiliation and prayer, and I hereby invite the ministers among all religious denominations in this State, to open their places of public worship on that day, for the people to assemble and humble themselves before their Maker, to return thanks for these marks of His favor, and to entreat a continuance of His abundant mercy to us as a people, and further, more to beseech him to arrest the arm of the destroying angel which in other places is doing his work of death; to comfort the widow, to protect the orphan; to give sustenance to the poor and needy, to give healing to the sick, the spirit of joy for the heaviness of grief, and to show to all mankind the mercy and salvation of our God. And I hereby further invite and request all people to lay aside on that day their usual business and worldly avocations, and to observe with solemnity the religious rites which are herein mentioned.

Given under my hand, and the seal of the State, at Columbia, this eighteenth day of September, Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and fifty-three, and the seventy-eighth year of the Independence of the United States of America.

THE Subscriber has taken the Store lately occupied by David Pinchback, and is now offering his goods for sale, for Cash, or to approved customers on time. COMMUNICATED.

The Planters' & Mechanics' Hotel.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—Having recently had occasion to lodge in your town, our lot has been cast with our friend of the Planters' and Mechanics' Hotel, and we cannot omit expressing publicly our gratification at the manner in which his house is managed, and the efforts he used to promote the comfort of those who call on him. We have always found his table bountifully supplied with the best fare to be found in the market, and prepared in such a manner as would delight the palate of the most fastidious. His rooms are always in good order, and well furnished. His servants are dutiful and attentive; and to crown all, the host himself is ever present to anticipate your slightest want and to render your condition as pleasant as possible. We have no where found so good accommodations, and to those who, like ourselves, are plain farmers, the Planters' & Mechanics' is the house to be preferred. In attention to horses, a matter which we farmers look to, our friend LETSON sees that nothing is wanting. He knows how to have them cared for, and sees that it is done.

To those of our friends who may have to lodge in Chester, we would recommend a trial of the hospitality of this House, for we believe that a better House is not to be found in the country. We make this communication unsolicited, and solely with the view to inform our friends where good quarters are to be had.

Great Family & Plantation Medicine.

WRIGHT'S

INDIAN AND VEGETABLE PILLS.

THIS highly valuable preparation, esteemed above every other article of the kind at the North, has been latterly acquiring a like celebrity at the South and Southwest. It is a strictly original composition, and bases its claims upon its intrinsic merits, as adapted to the varied requirements of the human system. In fact, it has been justly styled "Nature's own Remedy," since the Pills, in their operation, answer precisely the indications which Nature points out. They possess the merit, also, of being entirely free from mercury, and all mineral admixture whatever.

In the fevers and other complaints incident to southern and southwestern climates, these Pills are unsurpassed in efficacy. They have cured Yellow Fever after every other remedy had failed. They have broken up the Ague and Bilious Fever in all their forms. They are thoroughly anti-bilious in their action, in whatever shape it may present itself—powerful for good, and yet innocent of injury.

If resorted to in time, this medicine will be found to answer all the requirements of the family and plantation. For Females at certain seasons there is none superior, if indeed, there be any equal to it. Even for Children afflicted with any of the prevalent disorders, a trial of it will suffice to place it upon the most favorable footing in the estimation of all concerned.

The genuine is for sale by
